Artists Will Appear Here Tuesday Nite

Murray Webb, Barytone, Is Highly Praised by Critics

Miss Bernard, Concert Pianist, Also Wins Share of Acclaim

The Friday night dances at the city park are proving such a popular attraction to local residents that the concert series has for several weeks past been somewhat neglected. However, the series will be resumed next Tuesday evening, and the entertainment committee of the Chamber of Commerce takes pleasure in announcing the engagement of Murray Webb, popular American barytone, and Miss Grace Bernard, concert pianist, who will present a concert of popular and classical numbers.

The program will be presented in front of the park house, with the pool adding its charm to the stage setting.

Both Mr. Webb and Miss Bernard have received instruction in America and Europe, under celebrated artists. They are widely known in the United States and on the continent and many flattering press criticisms attest their popularity. They are spending the summer in California and it was through most fortunate circumstances that the local committee was able to secure them for a concert at a very nominal expense.

The program will start as usual at about 7:45 and the following program will be presented: 1. Prelude, Rachmaninoff, Grace Bernard. 2. Little Mother of Mine, Burleigh; Your Eyes Have Told Me So, Blafuss; One Year, Burleigh; Murray Webb. 3. Castilian Dance, Albeniz; To a Waterlily, McDowell; The Wind, Gade; Grace Bernard. 4. Little Grey Home in the West, Lohr; Boy of Mine, Ball; Didn't it Rain, Burleigh; Somewhere a Voice is Calling, Tait; Murray Webb. 5. Rigoletto Paraphrase, Liszt; Miss Bernard. Intermission. 6. Just a Touch of Vaudeville, "Three Voices," Bob Graham.

There was considerable chagrin manifested by committee members over the actions of some of the very young people during the recent concert by the Pasadena Elks Band. They are making a special request that parents take charge of their children during ensuing concerts and entertainments to the end that both the public and the artists may not be disturbed by unnecessary noises.

It seems necessary, also, to caution those intending to leave early to park far enough from the "outdoor theatre" so that the noise of engine-starting will not work hardship on the artists, and those interested in the entertainment. This is an appeal for no more than ordinary courtesy, and is probably unnecessary, except in the case of thoughtless individuals who fail to appreciate the circumstances under which the concert series is being produced.

SURVEYORS ON CANYON ROAD MAKING PROGRESS

Surveyors on the Big Santa Anita Canyon road have now reached a point near Sturtevant's Camp, and very satisfactory progress is being made. According to persistent rumors, the road, when and if opened, will enter the canyon over the Cook-Woodley estate, using the grade established by the county when the Big Santa Anita Dam was under construction.

If the proposed road is put under construction and finally opened thru to Valley Forge, Barley Flats and Chilero it will open up a beautiful back country that would attract thousands of tourists every season. Sierra Madre would fall heir to most of the in-going traffic, via Central and Baldwin.

VALLEY FORGE LODGE PROPRIETRESS IN CITY

Cheri Devore, cordial proprietress of Valley Forge Lodge on Mt. Milson, was in Sierra Madre Thursday. She reports a very brisk patronage at the lodge this year and states that some nice "bunches" have been taken out of the place recently.

Don't forget to aid in financing Friday night dances at the park—the committee will appreciate your generosity.

Water Level In the Basin Stays at Par

Richardson Says Need for Repair Work is Very Urgent

A further check-up on the water level at the city wells in the Sierra Madre basin, according to Ralph V. Richardson, the results of whose investigations were published in a recent issue and which has caused some controversy in official circles, reveals that due to the fact that there has been but light pumping the past week by the city pumps, the level has remained stationary, it now being 16 feet below the level at this same time last year.

"The water board of the city council," says Mr. Richardson, "are thoroughly alive to the fact that a serious situation exists and are daily keeping in touch with the water department. Arrangement has been made with the Byron and Jackson Corporation of Los Angeles so that if the water level in No. 1 well should continue to sink and the pump begin to draw air, that a section of shaft and column could be had at short notice and an emergency repair be made which would take care of the situation through the balance of the summer or until such time as a complete overhaul of pump and well could be made."

"Well No. 1 has been in operation for approximately eight years and so far as any records show has never had any repair work done on it or been sanded. It would appear that it is high time that at the first opportunity it should be overhauled and cleaned out."

Mr. Richardson is one of the largest users of water in the city, and through such use over a long period of years is naturally to be considered somewhat of an authority on local conditions.

Ralph Stewart Adds Line of New Tires To Re-tread Shop

Ralph Stewart who recently leased the tire shop from Al Myers announces on another page of this week's issue of the Sierra Madre News that he has put in a line of new tires and tubes as a permanent adjunct to that business which formerly was confined to the re-treading of old tires and to the tire repair business.

Dances in City Park to Be Continued During Remainder of Summer Season

That the series of dances being staged on the tennis courts at the city park will be continued through the summer seems certain, according to the ready response on the part of those attending last Friday night's "soiree" to a call for funds. The tidy sum of $28 was drawn from the tin receptacle late in the evening, and that closely approximated the expense.

The young folks in the city are not alone in their appreciation of the dance series being sponsored by the chamber of commerce. At least half of the number attending last Friday night were adults. Everyone present entered fully into the spirit of the occasion and if anyone was unhappy he failed to make it known to the general public.

Frank Spencer, who is in direct charge of the series, is being highly commended for the efficient manner in which the affairs are being conducted. The

J. F. Sadler Moves Into New Store

Celebrates Sixteenth Anniversary of Starting in Business Here

Store One of Most Attractive in Entire San Gabriel Valley

J. F. Sadler & Co. celebrate the sixteenth anniversary of the starting of their dry goods store in Sierra Madre next week by announcing their removal to a brand new store in the Kersting Block, just two doors south of the former location. Mr. Sadler opened up his old store here in August, 1913, and has built up a very creditable business.

Open house will be held Monday, August 5, and friends are cordially invited to come to inspect the new store.

The new building contains more than 2000 square feet of floor space and, with all its modern features, is one of the most attractive stores of its kind in the whole San Gabriel Valley. The new gum-wood fixtures, the excellent lighting system, the Spanish architecture found both inside and outside, the new process floor finish, and the large display windows combine to give this store a most attractive appearance.

Besides the store room, there is a large stock room, fitting room and ladies' rest room. The stock of merchandise has been substantially increased and new lines are being added constantly.

Mr. Sadler and Mr. Kersting, who put up the building, are to be congratulated for their splendid enterprise.

COL. HERSEY REPORTED "UNDER THE WEATHER"

Col. H. E. Hersey, the popular weather man for all Southern California, who honors Sierra Madre by living at 575 North Hermosa, was taken ill with a cold Sunday while celebrating his sixty-eighth birthday.

The sudden change of temperature was probably responsible for putting the Colonel "under the weather," so to speak. Monday, Col. Hersey went to his offices in Los Angeles, but concluded the weather would have to be left in the hands of his assistants for about a week, until he recovers.

He is now much improved and will soon be able to again furnish reports on the weather for Southern California.

J. E. CLARK INSTALLS PLANT AT HALF-WAY

J. E. Clark, of Clark's Half Way House on Sturtevant Trail, was in the city Tuesday attending to business matters and visiting friends. Mr. Clark has recently installed a Delco electric plant on his premises and also an electric refrigerator, which aids greatly in keeping cooling drinks on hand for hikers up the trail. Mr. Clark states that there has been somewhat of a falling off, so to speak, in the number of hikers during the past two or three weeks, due to the warm weather, but predicts a normal traffic as soon as the hot weather is over. He states that while the water in the stream bed is diminishing in volume, the back country is unusually beautiful this season and anyone making the trip back is well repaid for the effort expended.

BUILDING PERMITS FOR MONTH NEARLY DOUBLE LAST JULY

Despite the fact that building operations in many of the smaller cities in Southern California have not been considered active during the past month, permits issued from the office of Building Inspector George Cox show a total of $15,610 for the month of July, as against $8825 for the same month last year in Sierra Madre. The two highest permits were issued to Roy Ham-baugh, for a $7500 residence on Live Oak, and to John F. Schuster, 15 West Montecito for a residence to cost $5500.

Lone Eagle Will Speak To Pupils

Interesting Local Resident is Engaged for Kiwanis Program

Two interesting programs have been arranged for the next two meetings of the local Kiwanis Club, according to President Ray Grant in an announcement at this week's session.

Next Tuesday, August 6, the club will meet at the Sierra Madre public school and will put on an entertainment for the summer health school pupils. The main feature of the meeting will be a talk by Lone Eagle, member of the Sioux Tribe of Indians by adoption since he was 11 years old and now a resident of Sierra Madre.

Lone Eagle will tell interesting Indian legends, describe their customs and tell of his experiences in making motion pictures with Tom Mix for several years. He will show wonderful souvenirs of his experiences, such as an Indian blanket with a belt of 41,000 beads, his famous "Colt" revolver with a history, and other paraphernalia.

The meeting a week from Tuesday, August 13, will be taken up with a first-hand report by E. D. Burbank upon the Kiwanis International Convention recently held in Milwaukee. Mr. Burbank was delegate from the local club.

Funeral Services for Mrs. Dranga Will Be Today at 2 P.M.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Tufts Dranga will be held Friday afternoon, August 2, at 2 o'clock from the Ray A. Grant funeral parlors, 201 West Central Ave. The funeral was delayed awaiting the arrival of a daughter from Honolulu. Mrs. Dranga passed away Friday evening at the Pasadena Hospital where she had been taken after suffering a fractured hip in a fall some two weeks ago.

She is the aunt of Dr. Gilbert Bovard and the sister of Miss Alice E. Tufts, 159 West Montecito, with whom Mrs. Dranga has made her home for the past six years. She was a native of Wilton, Iowa, and was 68 years of age. She was a member of the Congregational Church, the Woman's Club and the Eastern Star. She is survived by two daughters, Dr. Muriel Cass of Honolulu, and Mrs. Inanda Linden of Fresno, and three sons, Burton O. Dranga, Eugene T. Dranga and Orlando C. Dranga of San Diego.

Burial will be in the family lot in San Diego at 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoon.

Well Known Builder May Make Future Home in This City

E. R. Bartlett, superintendent of building at San Clemente, has taken up a temporary residence with Dr. Marie A. Everett, 153 Santa Anita Court. Mr. Everett is not a stranger in Sierra Madre, having been associated with the Ole Hanson Corporation in 1925-26. He has been stricken with bronchial asthma and is here to recuperate as he can no longer reside in San Clemente, "the Spanish village by the Pacific Ocean." If his condition improves here, he will make Sierra Madre his permanent home. He is the owner of property here. When Dr. Everett visited Southern California in 1915, she met Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett in Hollywood where they were then residing, and they have been very staunch friends ever since.

Red Cross Swim Week Cost Slight

One Hundred Dollars Covers Expenses of Week of Instruction

Christmas Sewing Is Making Steady Progress in This City

At Monday's meeting of the board of directors of the Sierra Madre chapter of American Red Cross, W. R. Humphries, chairman, presented his report of the expenses of the recent service week, as follows: Instructor, $70; pins and emblems, $9; general expenses, $11.90; printing, $3.25; photographs, $3.51; total, $97.66.

With the attendance well over 200, this places the cost of each individual's instruction under 50 cents, a marvelously low fee as compared with the usual cost of a course of swimming lessons.

The Red Cross chapter considers this a community investment, according to Chairman Humphries, and not an expense, and right in line with the chapter's general policy of every day community service as well as service in time of disaster. The monthly milk bill for certain families in need of milk, the cost of equipment for the firemen's first-aid cabinet, the $50 contribution toward the Summer Health school and last year's adult course in first aid, are other items which this chapter considers a profitable investment in community welfare.

While local needs are being cared for, Mrs. Fred Griebenow, production chairman, has had several sewing days at her home preparing Sierra Madre's quota of garments to be supplied, and Christmas bags to be prepared for early shipment. Her committee in this work consists of Mrs. Percy Kortkamp, Mrs. Stella Dennison, Mrs. J. Milton Steinberger, Mrs. H. H. Holland, Mrs. Wm. Wolfe and Mrs. F. H. Hartman. Others who have volunteered their services with this committee are Mrs. Lila Kendall, Mrs. R. M. Finlayson and Mrs. Franklin Swift. Many of the garments have been completed and will be on exhibition in the near future. More volunteer knitters for sweaters are needed.

The chapter expects in the near future to sponsor another course in first aid work and next summer hold another and more extensive swimming campaign. Members of the Red Cross in Sierra Madre can surely boast of profitable dividends on their dollar investments.

FLORIDA RESIDENTS ENJOY AN EXTENSIVE MOTOR TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Anderson of Miami, Florida, accompanied by their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Leon D. Nelson, arrived in Sierra Madre last Friday night for several days visit with Mr. Anderson's brother, George S. Anderson of 375 Mariposa. After a visit in Southern California, they expect to drive north to San Francisco, Portland and other points, and before returning to their home will have covered in all about 12,000 miles. Mr. Anderson was formerly an attorney in St. Louis, but has retired to enjoy the fruits of his labors.

Fire Department to Raise Funds to Complete Truck by Gathering Papers

Stories of the various ways in which Sierra Madre's Volunteer Fire Department has added to its equipment without putting a suction hose into the city treasury have been so numerous as to make any further comment along this line rather commonplace. They have devoted untiring energy at various times in the past, and in building the new emergency truck and equipping it for various lines of service they are merely evidencing a continuation of their well-known policy.

George Norris, assistant to Chief "Bill" Richards, states that the emergency truck is assuming final shape rapidly and that the men in the department have already begun the paint job. Red duco will be used on the body and when the unit appears on the streets within the next few days it will be resplendent in its new dress. A considerable quantity of paint will be necessary to do the job with the necessary number of coats, and so far the "paint fund" is considerably short

Stewart Says No Cause for Water Alarm

Ample Supply Assured for Sierra Madre This Year

The following open letter submitted by Ralph Stewart, chairman of the water committee of the city council, is in the nature of a reply to the article published in last week's issue of this paper relative to the poor condition of city well No. 1.

The article referred to contained nothing but facts which may be substantiated by any interested citizen and there was nothing of an "alarmist" nature in the story published by this newspaper, even though some of the city dailies may have exaggerated conditions somewhat. Mr. Stewart's letter follows in full:

To the Citizens of Sierra Madre: The water committee of the city council assures all water users that there has been and is no danger of an ample water supply this summer.

The committee is so confident of the supply being adequate that, to date, there has been no consideration of limiting the hours for yard use and sprinkling as has been found necessary in many former years.

This is not to be construed as encouraging any waste of water—that should not be allowed at any time—but there will be plenty of water for all legitimate purposes.

The committee fully realizes that there are serious problems in connection with the operation and expansion of the water system to provide for present and future needs of this growing city. (Continued on Page Eight)

Wheeling Hardware Store Announces August Clearance

A store-wide clearance is announced this week by Wheeling's Hardware Store on North Baldwin Avenue. A 10 percent reduction will be allowed during the month of August on every article in the store.

At Wheeling has been in business here for six years and during that time he has gained the confidence of the community to the extent that no one will question the fact that this August clearance means a genuine cut in regular prices on all his high-grade merchandise.

of the required sum. Donations of cash in small sums will be cheerfully accepted. As a means of raising money for use in completing the Buick truck, the chassis of which was donated by E. L. Sapp of Monrovia, the department has hit upon the plan of collecting and selling old papers and magazines. At no time are papers a drug on the Sierra Madre market, for various organizations have discovered this a pleasant way of augmenting their exchequers, but the firemen are hopeful that there are some sources as yet undiscovered by other collectors which may be productive of more or less "tonnage." Call any member of the department, or George Norris in particular.

The department promises a demonstration of the truck when it is finally completed.

J. L. Asbury will be one of the speakers next Friday night at the first meeting of the San Gabriel Valley Publishers Association, to be held in Covina.

Tennis Fans Warm Up for Tournament

Nearly Forty Sign Up for Matches to Begin Here August 5

Line-up Indicates Many Live-ly Tilts by Able Net Enthusiasts

Tennis enthusiasm continues to grow as the date for the opening of the tournament, Monday, Aug. 5, draws near and nearly forty entrants start warming up. The directors held a meeting Monday afternoon to decide on some details of procedure and then on Tuesday evening there was a general meeting of all tennis fans in the city hall.

President Emil Smith had charge of the meeting, and the main feature was the reading and adoption of the by-laws which are to govern the Sierra Madre Tennis Association, now a permanent organization. Arthur Pritchard, chairman of the committee on by-laws, read and explained them in a very able manner.

Thursday noon was the deadline for entering the tournament and games will be started next Monday. The matches will all be played on the city courts and it is expected that the lights will be installed in time to allow night playing by those who cannot play their matches during the day. All of the events in this sort of preliminary contest will be run off next week if at all possible. No prizes will be awarded for these preliminary games, but plans are under way for a real competitive tournament to be played later in the summer or early fall when more players will be back from their vacations.

The following schedule of matches by the nearly forty entrants has been arranged by the committee. Players may choose their own time for their respective games as nearly as possible, but they are requested to sign up at the Sierra Madre News office the hour they expect to play in order to avoid duplication as there are only two courts to be used. Two sets out of three will win a match in the preliminary bouts.

"Air raids" over Sierra Madre as a part of the filming of the "Sky Hawk" caused considerable alarm to some persons, Wednesday and Thursday nights, but the interest displayed by others quite offset the apprehension shown. It is said the picture will be completed without further "cannonading" on the movie lot.

Mrs. J. R. Evans of East Grand View Avenue, entertained on Thursday in honor of her little son Bobby's birthday. After a hearty frolic on the lawn, with "London's Bridge" and "The Farmer's in the Dell," the little guests were seated at a long party table of pink and blue.

Askew, he fell to the pavement, fracturing his skull and injuring his elbow and spine. He was taken to Dr. Groth's Sierra Madre Hospital where he remained unconscious for five hours. Dr. Groth reports Mr. White's condition is now improving rapidly.

MARRIAGE SURPRISES FRIENDS

Donald Robertson and Clementine Lohman of Los Angeles were quietly married Saturday noon in Tia Juana, Mexico, in a civil ceremony. They are at the Aztec Hotel until the middle of August and will then move to Sierra Madre to make their home.

Mr. Robertson is assistant to Mr. Dietz in the city clerk's office. During his residence here he has established a wide circle of friends, who were much surprised to know of his marriage.

Miss Lohman, who has many friends here, has lived in California for many years, and for some time past has lived in Monrovia. She also has won many friends in Sierra Madre who will offer her all the usual good wishes.

Mrs. L. H. Stevenson, mother of Mrs. Randolph Wood, left on Thursday for Santa Barbara to visit her sister, Daisy Hawks.

Tips to Motorists

After the new car has been driven a thousand miles, it is a good plan to tighten all body bolts, because by this time the padding placed between the body and chassis has had an opportunity to settle.

Brakes that aren't adjusted and equalized, rattle, chatter and squeak. The tread of one or more of your tires is soon worn down; the frame of the car is distorted with strain; the wheels lose their perfect alignment. Brakes should be adjusted every thirty days.

Electrical troubles are a source of endless annoyance to the touring motorist. Therefore start with an electrical system completely overhauled. The storage battery should be fully charged and filled with distilled water, while the terminals must be clean and tight. Since it is sometimes difficult to get fuses on the road, spare bulbs and extra fuses should be carried in the car.

Regardless of the kind or make of brakes used on the car it is well to oil all operating parts regularly, even if it is only a matter of putting a few drops of oil on the threads of the adjusting nuts or on the anchor pins. This will greatly simplify the work of adjusting the brakes or of removing the bands for re-lining.

Possibility of the engine working loose from its supports is something that few motorists seem to consider. Subjected to varying measures of vibration, jolted and bounced over a wide variety of roads, it is not strange that the engine should work loose at times. It can create a great deal of annoyance under such circumstances. Even the slightest misalignment may cause serious trouble. Having the bolts tightened is too simple a task to allow it to go undone.

Timing gears often are the source of aggravating noises.

Picture to Be on Display in News Office Window

On display in the News office next week will be a framed picture taken in France on the occasion of the second A.E.F. expedition, of an enlargement of a Yankee helmet with Flanders poppies growing artistically around it. The picture is to be presented as a personal prize from Mrs. R. W. Stewart, who is state chairman of unit activities, community service, Campfire Girls, Girl Scouts, Girl Reserves, to the best drill team in the state competition to be held in San Diego in August.

Following is the explanation of the picture, which was tinted by Beth Manning of North Grove Street: The picture was taken by a district commander of Indiana in regard to which he says:

"During the World War I served with Battery D, 5th Field Artillery, of the famous First Division, as orienting officer. My duties involved a careful study of the territory covered by each of the offensives in which the division participated. After nine weeks in front of Cantigny, both before and after the capture of that village, I learned to know the country about that town very well. When the 2nd A.E.F. went back to France I spent two weeks wandering along the old front lines. We visited Cantigny early in September, when the fields were red with Flanders poppies. Most of the fields had been leveled up and cultivated again, but one had only to step into any of the woods, or walk along the edges of the thickets to find many reminders of those days when the boys of the First Division lay in "fox holes" just beyond the pile of sticks and stones that had been Cantigny while the enemy made both day and night an inferno of bursting shells, rattling machine-gun fire and choking gas clouds, in his vain attempt to drive out the impudent Yanks. When the Boche gave up that hopeless task the field between the village and Framicourt Wood was red with the blood of both Americans and German.

"When we saw it again in September, 1929, the field was again red, but this time with the poppies we have chosen as our flower. Along the west edge of the field, and not far from the original First Division monument, built by the soldiers themselves, I found this Yank helmet. It had been struck at least twice by machine gun bullets and in the top was a hole as large as one's hand, torn by a "graveyard butterfly" as the boys named the shell splinters."

It's funny, but the more wheat comes up the more wheat goes down.—American Lumberman.

However, it would be a great deal worse if some men preached what they practise. — Detroit News.

County Fair at Pomona to Be Best in History

Marking the inauguration of the final intensive campaign for staging the eighth Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona, 8,000 premium books were mailed out to as many prospective exhibitors in the livestock, agricultural, horticultural and junior departments today. The preparations call for a more complete and a more elaborate exhibit than ever before. Preliminary preparations have been in progress for months, or, in fact, from the close of the previous fair. This year will see every state in the union and many foreign countries represented in some one of the long list of departments according to Secretary C. B. Afflerbaugh. The Fair will open Tuesday, Sept. 17, and continue thru the following Sunday, Sept. 22.

Never in the history of the fair has the demand for space been so great nor has it come in so early as has been the case this year. The fact that the state fair is staging a Diamond Jubilee celebration this year appears to be acting as a mighty stimulus to Los Angeles County Fair, for it is apparent that many of the big feature attractions will come from there here.

As a result of it all there is a rare treat in store for the public and among the early preparations at the fair grounds are the plans to care for a record attendance. Last year Los Angeles County Fair was one of the few in the entire country to show an attendance increase.

A basket dinner at noon, a popular program immediately following, and the county registers as a meeting place for friends will be features. All Coloradans are urged to rally for the great day.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

THE News is somewhat at a loss to account for the very apparent displeasure manifested in certain quarters over the news story concerning Sierra Madre water problems, appearing in the issue of last Friday, July 26. A very careful checking up of the facts indicate that the story was correct in all essentials. It is true that the story has created some unrest among local citizens, who are beginning to wonder why the work of the water department is being permitted to lag, following the voting of bonds in the sum of $130,000 for improvements and replacements, a year ago.

In open council meeting several weeks ago it was shown that many mains to be replaced are in bad condition, and should be replaced at once. These mains are now giving a great deal of trouble.

Early in the present year it was officially brought to the notice of the council that one of the wells, 550 feet in dept, was obstructed at about 390 feet. It is impossible, under the circumstances, to lower the sand pumping equipment below that point, and in effect the well will be useless at a depth of more than 390 feet.

Sierra Madre's water supply is its most important asset. It is the one utility that should be divorced absolutely from politics or personalities. And present conditions would indicate that delays are dangerous.

In its wider aspect, Sierra Madre's daily water supply is not quite so important as its supply for the future. For several years past Sierra Madre has been engaged in controversy with the city of Arcadia in regard to water rights in the Santa Anita basin. A former council very wisely decided to go into the matter of water rights and water supply very thoroughly and data along both lines has been gathered on behalf of the city by engineers and attorneys. Water "fights" have a reputation of being particularly nasty in Southern California, where water is none too plentiful. Arcadia has very cleverly secured prescriptive rights to a large volume of water in the basin that Sierra Madre rightfully claims as belonging to this city. Such use can not now be denied, but any further drain can be averted if the matter is properly presented.

It is a matter of no little concern to many residents of this city that Attorney Howard, widely known in legal circles as an expert on riparian law, has been removed from duty by the present council. He has been engaged for the past two years, more or less, as considerable expense, in gathering necessary data.

O. A. Gierlich, as city engineer, has also spent much time, at considerable expense to the city, in gathering data that will be vital to Sierra Madre's interests if the controversy reaches the courts. Mr. Howard and Mr. Gierlich have worked together on many phases of the work and each would be of tremendous help to the other in properly presenting the matter.

The city council has made no statement as to its plan of procedure now that Mr. Howard has been dismissed. It may be properly supposed that the matter he has gathered would be of little use to another attorney, should another be engaged to prosecute the work. And consequently the work Mr. Howard has already done will have to be redone by his successor.

The same process of reasoning would apply to Mr. Gierlich's work. His reports to the council contain the facts, it is true, but these reports must be substantiated by data and personal knowledge which is the property of Mr. Gierlich alone.

It is quite possible that Sierra Madre and Arcadia may reach a compromise, and that recourse to the courts may not be necessary. With keen appreciation of Mayor Multer's intense loyalty to his home city, together with his business ability, perhaps one may be pardoned for thinking that Sierra Madre might not fare so well in a compromise program. At least, it would seem the part of good judgment to secure a compromise before Mr. Howard is gone beyond our reach.

The News has no intention to attempt to dictate to the city council. The members have been duly elected and form an official unit. Nevertheless the water system is not a private corporation, but is the property of the people. As a representative of the people, the News believes it a matter of sound policy to print any news concerning their utilities that may seem just and proper. And in the foregoing instance we believe that any statements that have been made or will be made are both, just and proper.

One more thought, inconclusion. It has been rumored frequently of late that the city has no map showing its water system in detail. Investigation shows that a very complete map has been practically completed by the city engineer, and that it is considered very comprehensive. It is also quite true that in former years many miles of pipe were laid without any record being made. This condition has been remedied and the city now has a very complete map of its water system.

MORE ABOUT OUR SCHOOLS

OUR editorial last week upon the most unsatisfactory school situation in Sierra Madre brought forth such a deluge of commendatory remarks that we feel encouraged to "carry on" with the idea. One lady came in today to tell us she was leaving the latter part of the week for the northern part of the state and volunteered the information that the biggest factor in bringing about her decision to leave Sierra Madre was the school situation. She has a boy in the grades who will soon be ready for junior high, and she said she was not willing to have him transported to another city without any sort of supervision on the bus, having to leave very early in the morning, and then wait an hour or so at Pasadena before teachers come to look after the youngsters.

A man came in the same day and expressed practically the same sentiment but stated that he could not leave because he owned property here which he can not sell.

Now there are some folks who will raise a "holler" about such frank statements on the grounds that it "gives the city a black eye" or is "unfavorable advertising." We have heard that before, especially in regard to the article we published last week calling attention to the inadequate water pumping facilities. Our answer is that Sierra Madre has been asleep long enough now and it is high time that she starts exercising a little activity which is just as essential to growth as "rest."

Another person stated that he was with us on the grade school matter but that we simply could not have a junior high school here because we do not have the requisite number of pupils. That reminds us of the old controversy about which came first, the hen or the egg. We cannot get people with children to come here unless we have adequate educational advantages, and then they tell us that we cannot have those advantages until we get more people here with children. We candidly believe that there is some way of getting around such a stumbling block, for there are remote districts in the United States where schools have been built for just one or two families, and often the children of the teacher constitute half the school enrollment.

But supposing there is no way of getting a junior high here until we get 200 pupils for the seventh grade and up; then let's make a start toward obtaining that requisite number by putting up a really modern grade school here which will soon help to attract families with children, and very soon we will have plenty of pupils of junior high age. Besides that, our real estate values would increase and there would be more people coming to distribute money among our merchants and to help pay taxes for civic improvements.

That other editorial subject we promised you soon is percolating in our bonnet and we are waiting merely for "something to happen" to bring it to an issue to be presented to you.

PROFLIGACY LEADS TO CRIME

"WE read an editorial the other day," remarks the Upland News, "on the subject of thrift and crime—the idea being advanced that thrift is a means toward reducing crime. Come to think it over—it is a very unusual thing for thrift and crime to go hand in hand. In fact, we don't recall that we know any real thrifty people who are criminals. Do you?"

"Besides the financial independence that comes to the thrifty there is also a character building side to it. If you encourage thrift among your young people, you are also making pretty certain of keeping them out of the criminal class. A great deal of crime is committed by people who want to live beyond their means. They want things they cannot afford and finally become so desperate they take most any method to secure it. The person, young or old, who is laying aside something each week or month is laying the foundation of financial independence and is more dependable than he who spends his money as fast as he makes it—in fact, many have their money spent before they earn it.

"The habit of saving creates self-respect and thrift should be encouraged in the young at every opportunity. We do not mean by thrift that one should deprive himself of every pleasure and many necessities, but the sensible way of saving does not make a miser out of anyone. The other extreme of allowing yourself to indulge in luxuries you cannot afford easily leads to temptation, dishonesty and finally to crime.

"Economy and thrift go hand in hand—and whatever you earn, be it much or little—don't spend it all."

Reservations

By J. R. E.

A swing around the circle, tho it is encompassed in the short space of two weeks, impresses one with the fact that California offers more to the vacationist and to the home-builder than any state in the Union. Every type of city, every variety of climate, and every altitude suitable for human habitation is offered to those interested in the diversified pursuits of life, liberty and happiness.

The wonders of Nature are exemplified in the marvelous national parks that have been set aside by a wise government for the enjoyment of the people. Sequoia, with its big trees; Yosemite, with its towering cliffs and turquoise blue waters, are but a part of the state and national park system.

The parks are being wisely administered by far-seeing men who believe in a maximum of enjoyment for their "customers" with a minimum of disciplinary effort. The precautions taken for the welfare of people visiting the parks entail hardships on no one and, in fact, make possible the opening and keeping open of these great monuments.

Any comment regarding the recreation points in California would be unfair that did not pay tribute to the marvelous road-building that has made these points accessible. Mountain driving holds no terrors for the most timid driver and none should hesitate to drive where the sport leads—so long as one can stay on the improved highways.

Perhaps it need not be a matter of regret that the terrain a few hundred feet from the highways remains in a virgin state. Undoubtedly only a small percentage of the tourists ever see anything that may not be observed from the seat of an automobile. Some few go a-horseback along unrequited trails for a few miles; but only a few of the most hardy ever pack a camp kit into the wilds and really enjoy nature at her best, and in her most glorious mood.

And perhaps that, too, is as it should be. It is the luxuries of life that have driven mankind forward to the high attainments of the twentieth century. If nature had been all-sufficient then we had progressed no farther than Adam and Eve on the day of their ejection from the well known Garden of Eden—if any. In the Garden of Eden man would have had no plus fours and the ladies, bless 'em, would have had no pleasure in wearing low-backed bathing garments. Neither would they have known the taste of the delicious apple nor the seductive avocado. So let's not mourn the fact that man makes not too great an effort to return to the primitive—a palmetto tent on the bare dirt floor of a great forest is close enough for most.

But perhaps it won't be long now until some asinine individual puts forth a project to carve the classic features of Aimee Semple McPherson, Paul Whiteman or (and) other celebrities, red hair, bald heads or what-not, on the alabaster surface of El Capitan. Misguided individuals in Georgia and South Dakota have already scared the face of Mother Nature with grotesque unlikeliness of great and near-great—to no good end.

Nor is the modern vehicle, the auto, to be ignored in summing up the pleasures and experiences of a vacation trip. When man can put together a few scraps of tin, a few chunks of rubber and leather and a half gallon or so of glass and evolve a vehicle that will transport him two or three hundred miles a day, at an expense of a dollar and a few added cents for fuel, it means real progress, and opens up virtually the entire continent to the vacationist.

And what a blessing is water! In the vast areas once waste, desert land, are now rich farms and thriving cities. Bakersfield, Visalia, Tulare, Fresno—all tremendously prosperous and progressive, monuments to the greatest gift of a beneficent Providence, water.

"Frisco at last, and a hurry-up call for furs and ear muffs—in early July. Traffic, a wide-awake night-mare. Architecture adapted from the old-time comic operas such as "Wizard of Oz," and "Little Nemo," every apartment house on the waterfront with a bay window modeled after very pudgy, elderly gentlemen.

And then down the coast: Beautiful Palo Alto and Stanford University; lovely Monterey and exquisite Carmel-by-the-Sea; Atascadero; Santa Maria, San Luis Obispo; Ventura; Oxnard; and then home via the magnificent Roosevelt Highway.

Carmel is peopled by idealists, not the least of whom is Perry Newberry, editor and co-publisher of the Carmel Pine Cone. Newberry is one of those rare individuals who knows the true worth of a satisfying existence and conducts his affairs for the joy it brings. Artist and writer, he forsook the grind of the metropolitan press and is helping develop that charming little community as a "home" town.

The newspapers up the coast are doing their share of compounding prosperity. Every one of them has made tremendous strides in the past three or four years. The Santa Maria Times, published by Orta B. Cannon; the Ventura papers, and the Oxnard Courier, owned and edited by J. J. Krouser. These papers all have done much for their communities—and their communities have reciprocated by doing much for them.

California newspaper men are being pestered by eastern buyers, or would-be buyers. As a matter of self-protection they have each placed high prices on their properties—and some times even that does not save them. Newspaper men, as a rule, are pretty keen students of economics. They know where the so-called "white spots" are likely to continue white, and their evident desire to come to California is to be taken as a sincere compliment to the resources of the state, present and future.

At Sequoia, the writer "met up" with Father Hyacinth, W. J. Schiltz and George Krier, who had driven over from Atascadero, and who were enjoying their trip tremendously.

At Lake Tahoe we camped at Meeks Bay, owned by O. Kehlet, formerly of Sierra Madre. It is one of the most beautiful spots in the High Sierras, a magnificent beach, bordered by tall pines making it a popular spot with vacationists. Fred Kehlet has a big speed boat, said to be the fastest on the lake, in which he gives plenty of thrills to visitors at the bay. A pet deer was being treated at the camp for a broken leg, and formed a special attraction for the young folks. And the deer and a police dog, "Chum," are inseparable companions.

At Atascadero the famous Inn was visited to check up on the stories told of the fine work done by Hapgood & Carlson, decorators. The stories are all right as far as they go, but words fail to do justice to the artistic work done by this local firm. The lobby of the inn is one of the most charming interiors we have ever seen, perfect in every detail. It is good to know that local men are so capable. Mr. Hapgood is severing his connection with the firm, temporarily, his friends believe. He says he will be gone at least a year. We'll give him six months.

A survey made in Los Angeles following the recent Shrine convention discloses that the hotels disgorged 98 gross of gin bottles, 238 gross ginger-ale bottles, 63 gross of fancy Scotch, 22 gross of champagne, 42 gross fancy wine, 132 gross miscellaneous pints, 49 gross beer, and 33 gross tonic bottles. The Shriners, of course, are recruited from the leaders in civic and social life in their respective communities so, of course, they can not be held responsible for the presence of the glass containers in the hotels. And it seems just a bit unfair to them that the bootleggers should come to town during the convention and give the order a black eye.

"Safety First" is a good old slogan, but the state highway commission isn't helping spread the idea by plastering all the curves in the road with "slow" signs. After a driver slows down a couple of dozen times in trying to heed such warnings, and finds that there is little or no reason for such posting, he is liable to become careless and pass up signs on really dangerous turns because he figures it's just another case of "Wolf! Wolf!"

And at that, it's only the dumbest sort of a driver that finds himself in difficulty nowadays. Cars are so nearly perfect that it is up to the driver to see that it goes thru life properly, and it's only when the human element fails that tragedy occurs.

"Reservations" was very much pleased to note that the Central Avenue Improvement Association in a recent communication to the city council recommended "That sidewalks be installed on West Central where there are none at present." And "Reservations" is waiting breathlessly for a petition asking for such improvement to be presented to the official board. The bridge paths on West Central have served their purpose and it will be a logical step to replace them with cement walks.

A recent magazine article states that an educational program looking toward the enforcement of prohibition would be a failure for the reason that the bootleggers do not want to be "educated." Inasmuch as the traffic depends upon demand as well as supply, perhaps it may be well to try to educate the consumers. And that results in another stalemate—they don't desire any "education" along that line, either.

CREDIT!

Many people---otherwise of irreproachable character---abuse the credit privilege.

The word CREDIT means belief in one's truth or sincerity; to rely upon one's honor or reputation; worthiness or belief.

How many "worthy" citizens realize that when they neglect to pay their creditors they are at the same time destroying a part of their honor and good name! Basking in the sunlight of popularity and outward opulence they forget that the home town merchant needs ready capital to gain for them buying advantages.

These home town merchants trust you. They are willing to aid you with the greatest of assets---cheerful credit.

Do you not likewise owe them an evidence of gratitude---prompt payment of bills rendered?

You and your shadow walk down every street in town. Your shadow is your attitude toward the credit privilege.

Fruit Exchange Publishes 'Dope' On the Fruit Fly

The most complete authentic information yet made available on the Mediterranean fruit fly will be mailed to citrus growers during the week of July 29 in the form of the Handbook of Citrus Insect Control for 1929, by R. S. Voglum, entomologist for California Fruit Growers Exchange.

Mr. Voglum has added a section on the fruit fly to his regular report and the Exchange is mailing the booklet to all member growers, associations, district exchanges and field men. Copies will be mailed to non-exchange growers upon request to the Pest Control Bureau of the Exchange. Mr. Voglum had the cooperation of Dr. F. R. Cole, United States Bureau of Entomology, who prepared a number of charts and color plates on the fly. Exact color reproduction, enlarged, of the Mediterranean fruit fly in all stages and of other common fruit flies, done by Dr. Cole, are declared to be the best and most helpful information yet published. A chart showing the complete life cycle of the fly and other maps, charts and photographic illustrations add to the handbook which gives most complete information on detection and eradication of this serious pest.

The booklet contains a report of the program of pest control in every citrus district of the state—a program based on the most effective, economical and safest insecticide methods, and definite control recommendations.

Mrs. Lawson, the Heroine of Big Fire, is Visitor

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Lawson, who have just returned to Southern California from Philadelphia, are visiting friends in Sierra Madre and in the back-country. They comment on the fact that a person can now reach Hennessey or Barley Flats with an automobile instead of having to hike or ride in on horseback.

Mr. Lawson was U. S. forest service patrolman stationed on Mt. Wilson from 1921 to 1925. Mrs. Lawson, who has resided in Los Angeles and in Sierra Madre since 1919, was with him at the lookout station. The Lawsons took an active part in the San Gabriel fire in 1924. Mr. Lawson was immediately rushed to the fire area and R. H. Charlton, forest supervisor at that time, placed Mrs. Lawson in charge of the station and camp. With her expert knowledge of the mountains and valleys over which the fire passed and with the instruments at the station, she was able to report the fire each time it broke out again or where it started anew. Men by the hundreds were brought up to Mt. Wilson to fight the fire. They were dispatched by Mrs. Lawson to the fire zones. She had to arrange means to obtain food for the fire fighters.

Rangers, supervisors, fire wardens and reporters came up to the look-out station to hear reports of the fire. Mrs. Lawson was called the heroine of the San Gabriel fire, and was the only woman to take active part in the work of stamping out the greatest fire that Southern California history records.

After the fire the Lawsons went east to Pennsylvania to see Mr. Lawson's father. They resided there until they returned to Sierra Madre Monday. Mrs. Lawson says that in all the United States or Canada they have not found a place that is such a joy to live in as Southern California.

The Lawsons are planning a trip to the back-country and expect to visit Louis Newcomb at Chiloe and Mrs. DeVore at Valley Forge.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawson plan to make their home in Los Angeles county, probably in Sierra Madre, where they are well known.

Indian Is Best Scout World Has Ever Known, Says Lone Eagle

The American Indian has the undisputed reputation of being the best scout the world has ever known, on the western plains in the early days before the great wave of civilization forced the red man on his present reservation, the scout was, next to the war chief and medicine man, the most honored and respected man in the tribe and in war time the most important. Every tribe and band had their scouts whose duty it was to watch for enemy approach and to find the location of enemy camps and war parties.

During their raids on neighboring tribes or settlements it was the scouts who made the perilous advance to seek the strength of the party or to locate ponies or other loot of war to be taken.

The scouts either traveled alone or in pairs, rarely ever more than two were sent out together. His work was perilous and his life was always in the utmost danger. It was his craftiness against all the enemy which in many cases numbered hundreds or even thousands of Indians, that saved his life in many instances.

His exploits and adventures were always far from his own people and many a narrow escape and daring fight against great odds was won by his craftiness, which had no witness except his own, and of which he seldom, if ever, related.

On the other hand many a lone scout was sent out by his chief on a reconnoitering expedition in the enemy's country who never returned to tell of a lone hero's fight in an unknown country.

On the frontier of our far western states there are numerous remote army posts where small detachments of soldiers were stationed for the protection of the pioneer settlers and ranchers against a possible attack from roving hostile Indian bands.

The majority of those extreme frontier forts consisted of a group of low buildings and barracks built around a small court or drill grounds. Surrounding this group of clustering buildings was a high stockade fence of ten or twelve inch logs, set perpendicular in the ground, forming a solid wall some 15 or 20 feet high, completely around the post quarters. At each of the four corners pumping equipment was in effect the well will be at a depth of more than 390 feet.

Sierra Madre's water supply is its most important asset. It is the one utility that should be divorced absolutely from politics or personalities. And present conditions would indicate that delays are dangerous.

friendly Indians who rendered valuable service to the government as a frontier scout was Lone Wolf, a young man of the Ogalla band of Sioux, who began his career as a scout for the government shortly after the close of the Civil war. Besides being a plainsman, he spoke half a dozen different Indian languages, which made him a valuable man as an interpreter when encountering Indians of other tribes.

Lone Wolf had served as a scout with such men as General Custer, Miles, Reno, Pratt and Hugh L. Scott, during the campaigns in the far west, and always remained faithful and loyal to the government, until his death on the Pine Ridge reservation in 1915.

Having known Lone Wolf since I was a small lad, I gained his most intimate friendship and thus heard many a true and interesting narrative of his life as an army scout during the Indian campaigns on our western frontier. But, perhaps one of the most remarkable feats of scouting he accomplished in recent years was the trailing of Antoine La Pierre, a renegade Canadian half-breed.

It was in the late fall of 1906, that the Horseshoe Bar ranch had just finished their horse roundup and were getting ready for the coming winter. They had rounded up some 600 horses belonging to the outfit which were to be kept on the range near the home ranch until spring. Among this bunch of range horses and Indian ponies were some 50 head of grade stock, showing a marked strain of Morgan type.

As these horses were in great demand for cavalry purposes it was decided to run them on a range in a bunch by themselves, where they could be broken during the winter and sold to the government the following spring. We herded them closely for a while, but, as they did not seem inclined to graze far from the ranch we became less watchful of their movements and only rode out to see them as we desired new mounts to be broken.

One day, however, several of the cowboys rode out to the herd for more horses and on reaching the accustomed range, not a single one of the remaining 20 horses could be found. A general roundup was sent out a few days later, but not a trace of the Morgans could be found. They had been stolen and driven clear out of the country, leaving no visible clue to the owners as to the direction they had been driven or as to their thief.

Lone Wolf, who had long since retired from active service as an army scout and having no tpep of his own, was an interesting and welcome visitor at the old-time ranch homes of the Dakotas and Montana. It was his custom to spend the winters on the various ranches in the Indian country and again as the warm spring days drew near, Lone Wolf bade adieu to his friends and returned to the Indian camps of his people.

It was during the fall roundup on the reservation that we met up with the veteran scout and invited him over to the Horseshoe Bar to spend the winter. When we returned from the hunt of our stolen horses which had so suddenly and completely disappeared, Lone Wolf announced that on the following morning he would go in quest of the missing animals. He was then nearly 70 years of age, but, insisted that he would find the whereabouts of the stolen herd or capture for us single-handed 20 of the best wild horses that roamed the Black Hills country.

True to his word Lone Wolf saddled up one of our best horses and taking another for a pack animal, started out the next day in quest of the stolen horses. We watched him as he rode out of sight over the prairie in the distance. Days passed and we received no word of the lone scout. A week went by and still no word from our Indian friend. The moon of long night (December) had come and gone, followed by the Snow Moon, with its usual blustery weather, and it turned steadily colder and the snow had piled into great drifts in the coulees and ravines on the bleak open prairies. We became uneasy about our friend, as we well knew the perils of being out on the fenceless prairies in a raging blizzard. But, as there were Sioux camped a long most of the large rivers and many ranchers' homes dotted over the prairies, it was very likely that Lone Wolf would stop in at some camp, if traveling became difficult. One evening as the moon was just peeping over the snow-crested prairies, we were not a little surprised and much overjoyed to see the ranch house door quietly open and the stalwart form of the veteran scout standing in the light of the open doorway. We heartily welcomed our lone friend and after a warm supper, invited him to a seat near the roaring fireplace where he filled his red stone pipe and leisurely began to smoke.

"The Great Snow Maker has covered all the prairies with a deep blanket," I ventured to Lone Wolf, as an introduction to conversation.

Another person on the ground simply could not have missed the number of pupils old controversy here or the egg children to come.

he puffed away at his pipe of kin-ni-kin-nick. After many minutes of smoking and gazing into the crackling fireplace, he began slowly to relate the story of his trip into the far north country. The first two days were spent in locating the right trail, as there were so many small herds coming and going over the range near the Horseshoe Bar corral, that all trace of an outgoing herd was covered by the numerous horse tracks. He had finally succeeded in discovering the right trail which led directly south for a distance of nearly 50 miles, and crossing the White river, led west through the bad lands until it reached the western side of the Black Hills, when the trail of the twenty stolen horses and their mounted riders circled several times and after crossing and recrossing the Little Big Horn river, the trail turned into a northerly direction.

Lone Wolf carefully followed the trail through the rough Big Horn country and on into the Alkali flats toward the north. The lone horse rustler seemed to know the country and was making good time driving the herd. Owing to the delay in starting and the difficulty in trailing over broken country the rustler succeeded in keeping several days ahead of the lone Indian rider.

Many days passed and Lone Wolf still followed the trail toward the north, the weather was growing quite cold and the light flurries of snow made the trail more difficult to follow. He was slowly gaining on the renegade and often found where he had built his campfire only a few nights before.

He was nearing the Canadian border, just south of the Gros Ventre country and was not more than two days behind the herd, when a cold northwestern wind came up, bringing with it a blinding snow squall, which got worse as the hours passed, until it finally became a raging blizzard, lasting three days, to go further on was impossible, besides the renegade was now in his own country, and not knowing that he was being followed would hold the stolen horses until spring. Lone Wolf, confident that the herd and their driver could easily be found the coming spring, decided to return to the ranch with the information he had carefully gained of the man in question, although the veteran old scout had not once seen the horse thief, he knew his complete description, his habits, his home, his tribe, his age, and even knew the color of the horse he rode, and the kind of rifle he carried in his saddle.

After a long and perilous ride over rough wind-swept country and many days of suffering in raging snow storms the half-starved Indian plainsman made his way across the mountains and prairies to the log ranch buildings of the Horseshoe Bar.

While Lone Wolf sat smoking his pipe in the glow of our blazing fireplace, he gave us a very vivid and exact description of the lone rider who had stolen our herd of Morgan horses.

Early in the following spring four of our riders started for the Gros Ventre country to try, if possible, to locate the renegade thief and our stolen herd.

Although Lone Wolf had never seen the renegade rustler, he gave us an exact description of him, his habits and where he would be found.

The lone renegade, he said, was a half-breed Cree Indian of about 40 years of age, very short, but, medium stock, was crippled in left leg, wore Indian moccasins, with spurs, a beaded buckskin shirt, corduroy trousers, and felt cowboy hat. He carried a .45 calibre revolver and a 30-30 calibre short barrel carbine in a holster on the right side of the saddle, the rider also fired a rifle from the left shoulder, rode a heavy stock saddle and used a spirited gray horse when he drove the herd to Canada.

The renegade was experienced in horse rustling, besides being well acquainted with all the surrounding stock country. He had lived with various tribes of Indians, as well as among white settlers, and knew the customs of each. Thus the old scout had given to us in detail the description of the rustler, who had stolen our herd and the part of the country he would most likely be found in.

Our riders arrived at one of the mounted police posts and gained the assistance of a squad of Canada's scarlet horsemen. After several days of inquiry and search on the reservation, the renegade was finally located, living with a family of half-breed Crees.

He was arrested by an investigation made as to his identity and character. He proved to be Antoine La Pierre, a notorious renegade outlaw, who was wanted in several states and provinces for horse stealing and other crimes. He proved to be of French and Indian extraction and about 40 years old, short of stature and stocky.

He had been shot in his left thigh and limped noticeably; he also stated that he was left-handed, had handled horses all his life and had traveled much in the northwest stock country. At the time he found our herd of Morgans he was riding a gray broncho, used a heavy stock saddle and had with him a Colt's .45 calibre revolver and a short-barrel Winchester carbine of .30 calibre, which he carried on the right side of his saddle. As was his custom, he wore a broad-brimmed felt hat, moccasins with spurs, a beaded buckskin shirt and corduroy trousers. Strange though it may seem, the thief answered to every description given him by our Indian friend, Lone Wolf, and without this description the capture of La Pierre would have been a long and difficult task, as he would have escaped immediately upon seeing the mounted police in his vicinity.

After La Pierre's arrest, he told where the horses were being herded by some of his friends, about 50 miles north of the reservation. The entire herd of 20 horses were found and driven back to the Horseshoe Bar ranch.

The vivid description of the outlaw and his characteristics given us by Lone Wolf was a feat of scout work which demanded our highest admiration and it was not until he had explained his trip in detail, could we fully understand how he gained all the detailed description of the wily half-breed. After much questioning and persistence he finally related the story.

"Cree half-breed knows all the country well, made ride in many ways to throw scout off trail, many circles across the river times before, pale face make big campfire and get far away. Indian make little fire and get up close. Paleface no savvy how to sleep warm. Indian scrape fire in new place and spread blankets on warm ground. White man use many pans and plates to eat from. Indian use none. Indian make fire in hole in ground, paleface waste much heat. When half-breed camp for night he cut evergreen branches to lay blankets on, marks on ground where he slept showed he was very short and stocky, footprints around the fire were moccasins. Pale face walk with toes turned a little out, Indians walk with toes straight ahead, and touches heel down first. Indian's feet very flat, white pale face has arched foot, half breed has medium. A slight difference in tracks of left and right foot showed left was slightly crippled. A spur rowel mark showed just behind each moccasin track.

Young man takes long step, old man take short steps and less steady."

Thus Lone Wolf in his broken English gave us his story of the unseen rustler. He went on further to explain how he found several bunches of white horse hair on the bark of trees where the rustler had tied his saddle horse and where it had rubbed its neck on the tree. Several times his horse had rolled in the dust which showed imprint of large saddle and short carbin rifle holster strapped on the right side. This showed the rider to be left-handed. Also on several occasions he found empty 30-30 rifle shells and judging from the position in which he found them from the moccasin prints of La Pierre when he fired, showed his rifle was fired from the left shoulder.

The finding of several empty .45 calibre shells showed he carried a revolver of that calibre. When kneeling down to build his campfire the imprints of his corduroy trousers could easily be seen by the experienced eye. A number of small glass beads picked up once or twice where La Pierre had folded up his blankets showed the wearer's shirt to be of buckskins, as Indians seldom ever sew beads on cloth. That he rode a spirited horse was evident by the array of hoof prints on several occasions where his mount had reared and bucked with his rider. This also showed that he was an experienced horseman. After reaching a certain point near the Canadian border, the direction in which La Pierre shifted his course, showed plainly that he was headed for the Gros Ventre country and with the severe weather and the belief that he was not being trailed, it was evident that he would not attempt to travel further than the reservation. It was on these facts that Lone Wolf based his information and description of the lone renegade, who had boldly and successfully driven a herd of stolen horses from Dakota to Canada, a distance of some 700 miles.

And to this day, if you should happen to meet any of the cowboys who have ridden the ranges of the Horseshoe Bar days, they are certain to tell you of the capture of Antoine La Pierre by Lone Wolf, the veteran Sioux scout.

Chief of Police George Cox is again able to resume his duties after a two weeks illness with intestinal flu.

Fire Flames

By One of the Boys

About the most exciting event in Firemen's circles the past week occurred while several members of the department were transferring from "shorts" to bathing suits (at the recent party at the canyon swimming pool.) During the scramble and rush in the bath house, the chief told things were all right, so he sneaked in the back door with a hose and wet things down. Only your imagination can describe the result. "Fire's Out!" was yelled in dismay by many. The chief soon disappeared when someone yelled "let's throw him in the pool!" Despite the cool evening all the boys took to the water but Hibbs, Karger and the chief (and the latter took to the city hall in a hurry.) Geo. Norris and "Shorty" Steinberger did not show up but had good alibis. "Shorty" said he couldn't get a suit to fit him, and George said he couldn't drink mountain water.

Jim Heasley wanted some life insurance, so he applied to his brother fireman, Gordon Brooks, for a policy. Gordon sent Jim to the company's doctor for an examination, and that was the last Jim heard of it. Meeting Gordon on the street, Jim said: "Say, how about that insurance policy? Do I get it?" "Well," said Gordon, "you know, after our doctor examines a prospect, it is customary to make a chart of the human body and he punched a hole in it wherever he found anything wrong." "Oh, is that so?" "He did do that in my case," "He sure did, and he took the chart home and put it on his player piano, and it played 'Nearer My God to Thee'."

Who can remember when men used to wear long trousers? Say won't it be great when a fellow will only wear one pair of pants at a time? We'll have to carry long pants on the side of the truck, as well as a coat for "in case of fire." Can you imagine anything sweeter than to see our chief dressed in fiery red shorts, or Louie Karger in yellow ones? Thank heavens, the "Men's Dress Reform Party" are foreigners.

We thought we would "ooze" down to the movie lot the other evening and not be seen there. We found several other husky firemen with the same notion. Bob Babbitt was investigating their plumbing. Hibbs their carpenter work, the Chief their extinguishers, Tom Schwartz was interested in the tone effects, and each other one had his personal interest—finding Louie talking to the leading lady. A lot of time was wasted waiting for something to happen and nothing much occurred, so home and to bed.

During the war George Norris had a bunch of recruits of whose fighting qualities he was a little doubtful, so he said to them: "Men, will you fight, or will you run?" "We will!" said the men. "Thank you, men; I knew you would!"

Next week is the big California State Firemen's Association convention at Fullerton. Many of the boys plan on going over. At our last meeting it was asked if we were to stay over night, and someone answered, "It all depends on the driver!" Although these conventions are the source of a good time, they are nevertheless a strictly business affair, pertaining to fire-fighting. Fire-fighting has become more than just a bucket brigade and to keep up with modern methods it is necessary to get acquainted with the other fellow's discoveries. It is our endeavor to keep alert to all improvements and the boys give a great deal of their time attending meetings of this nature. Men of scientific fire-fighting experience are always on hand to assist in this work.

There has been no date set for the next S.F.V.F.A. meeting. This will be decided by the Arcadia fire department at their next meeting. We haven't heard so much of late of our First Aid Squad other than that they are devoting a large part of their time to the work on the "Emergency Truck."

There is not a regular meeting this week. This is for the benefit of those who forget! "Fire's Out!"

Mlle. Rollier Picks This City for Home After Globe Tour

Mlle. Jeanne L. Rollier, who has just recently bought a home here at 246 North Lima, has a charming manner and wealth of experience that most anyone would envy.

She and her brother, Paul, with whom she lives, have fallen hopelessly in love with Sierra Madre and they find delightful recreation in fixing up their new home, after having roamed the world over and just recently having lived in the terrible bustle of New York City.

Mlle. Rollier is genuinely French born and educated. She possesses a certificate from the Alliance Francaise Association Nationale, which gives her "very honorable mention." This association trains teachers for instruction in French in the colonies and French missionary schools in foreign lands. She also has a handsome bronze medal known as the "Paul Douce Prize Medal" awarded her in Paris in 1922 for distinguished success in teaching.

Other highly complimentary credentials have been given her for successful teaching in the New York training for teachers and by the Christian and Missionary Alliance of New York City.

With these "passports" Miss Rollier has made her way completely around the world, teaching French in different seminaries and training schools in Germany, Switzerland, England, the United States, China, India and Indo-China. She was in India for fourteen years.

Mlle. Rollier announces in the professional directory of this newspaper that she will offer instruction in French here, either privately or in classes.

new residents to the valley. Meetings will be held in every community in the valley so that all concerned may learn the merits of the plan.

R. T. Smith of Temple City was elected chairman of the organization. Other officers are H. A. Miller of Baldwin Park, vice chairman; L. W. Everett of Covina, recording secretary, and C. W. Norris of Pasadena, treasurer. The executive committee is composed of H. S. Riser, Glendora; R. W. McQuiston, Azusa, and R. A. Schwartzkopf, Arcadia. An executive secretary will be appointed later.

Four questions will be decided by the official group in the drawing of a tentative program for the consideration of the individual community representatives. These comprise territory to be included in the plan, how funds collected will be spent to the best advantage, the quota for each community and a name for the Ray Kennard died Saturday from pneumonia after an illness of less than 24 hours following exposure on a camping trip. Besides his parents he is survived by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Kennard, and an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Sandage, all living on West Highland Avenue, in this city.

STEWART SAYS NO CAUSE FOR ALARM

Such problems can not be solved in the most efficient and economical manner through hasty action. A most thorough and careful investigation is under way, and meanwhile proper provision has been made to care for any emergency which might arise this season.

The committee issues this statement to allay any undue anxiety which may have been aroused by alarmist articles appearing in the local and outside papers during the past week.

While some of the statements in those articles were correct, they were so expressed that with their context they gave to the world the impression that Sierra Madre is suffering from a water shortage — which is absolutely false. None of those statements were authorized by any member of the council nor was the water committee, which has charge of the situation, consulted before publication.

There will be no water famine in Sierra Madre this season.

R. W. STEWART,
Chairman Water Committee,
The City Council.

'The Divine Lady' Is Feature at the Monrovia Theatre

The Monrovia Lyric Theater is continuing its popularity with Sierra Madre film lovers, and in the presentation of "The Divine Lady." First National's biggest production of the year, will probably draw an extra large number from this city. Corinne Griffith has never before had a role of the proportions afforded by the character of Lady Hamilton, after whom the picture is titled and about whom the plot revolves.

Romance that quivers and throbs with the life that is woven into it, thrills audiences in the Paramount picture, "The Man I Love," starring Richard Arlen and Mary Brian. "The Man I Love" is said to be the kind of picture that everyone loves.
